Abstract

A patient information system comprises a computer server having a patient information forum for at least one patient. Each of the patient information forums contains information regarding 5   an individual patient. A publicly accessible computer output device is networked to the computer server. Also networked to the computer server is a publicly accessible computer input device. A security subsystem is operably positioned between the patient information forum and the input device.